THE TIGER

By William Blake

Tiger Tiger, burning bright,
In the forest of the night;
What immortal hand or eye,
Could frame thy fearful symmetry?

In what distant deeps or skies,
Burnt the fire of thine eyes?
On what wings dare he aspire?
What the hand, dare sieze the fire?

And what shoulder, & what art,
Could twist the sinews of thy heart?
And when thy heart began to beat,
What dread hand? & what dread feet?

What the hammer? what the chain,
In what furnace was thy brain?
What the anvil? what dread grasp,
Dare its deadly terrors clasp?

When the stars threw down their spears
And water'd heaven with their tears:
Did he smile his works to see?
Did he who made the Lamb make thee?

Tiger Tiger burning bright,
In the forests of the night:
What immortal hand or eye,
Dare frame thy fearful symmetry?

DEDICATION

So far from having to do merely with statues, pictures, and symphonies, art is the name for that whole process of intelligence by which life, understanding its own conditions, turns them to the most interesting or exquisite account . . . Wherever materials are given form, wherever movement has direction, wherever life has, as it were, line and composition, there we have intelligence and there we have that transformation of a given chaos into a desired and desirable order that we call Art.

From Arts and the Man by Irwin Edman

We dedicate this, The Tiger of 1984, to two teachers who have had a strong influence on our high school years. Mr. Merullo and Mrs. King have taught us that art is freedom of expression and holds a place in everyone's life. We use it to order and to structure, to solidify our lives and our society. Everything is connected to art; the music we listen to, the buildings we live in, the way we interact, the books we read, all our entertainments; everything is enhanced by some form of art. They have shown us that art is part of our everyday lives. As Yearbook advisors, sadly, they will be leaving us. They have decided to put their energies into other projects with students. We'd like to thank them for all their time and effort. Their presence with the yearbook will be missed though, we're sure, it will still be felt.

"This really doesn't look like the right place."
"Come on, I'm sure 103's around here somewhere."
"But that's 317. I really think this isn't the right place."
"Oh God! Was that the last bell?"
Hey, maybe it's down this hall! No, those are all the 200's. There's a teacher or somebody. Ask him . . .
Um-um-Excuse me. Where's room 103?"

It seems like a long time ago that we wandered into Ipswich High for the first time, timid freshmen, looking in all the wrong wings for our homerooms. We eventually found them, with the patient guidance of Mr. McKenzie. It didn't take long for us to adjust to the High School. Within a week we learned how to remove shelves from empty lockers and transfer them to our own. It took even less time to realize that Mr. Laakso's name isn't pronounced "Laasko", and that Mrs. Fournier never gives partial credit. Soon, some of us even grew confident enough to call Mrs. Howes, "Andi", and Mrs. Papagiotas, "Kiki". These basic adjustments mastered, we settled down into the routine.
Three years later we entered our Senior year and ironically, re-inhabited our old freshmen homerooms. As seniors, most of us didn't even have to ask Mr. McKenzie how to find them. Who could believe it? The class of '84 was finally the senior class. Wiser and more mature, we plunged into the year with great enthusiasm, tackling the acedemic, athletic, and social aspects of school with pride. When things threatened to get dull, the freshmens' antics always provided amusement and diversion. We were never that immature, were we?

Senior year had a more serious side too. We all either sweated over college applications, or waited somewhat apprehensively to enter the job market. Soon we'd be at the bottom again, timid freshmen on a college campus, or timid employees, trying to please our bosses. However, most of our fears were overcame by the anticipation of the freedom ahead. If our determination in High School is any indication of our performance in the future, the class of '84 will certainly continue to overcome barriers and attain great satisfaction and success.

How strange to think
How many friends were lost somewhere behind
Where are they now
How I miss those companions
Who walked the canyons of the night
By my side
Where are they now
Like so many crazy dancers
We live only for the answers in a song
But that was long ago
Where are they now
"Where Are They Now"

John Bettis

In Memory Of

In the years we have spent together as a class, we all have made countless friends. Unfortunately, we have also lost three very special ones whom we will miss dearly. Because of this loss we have all felt, the Senior Section of the 1984 Yearbook is dedicated to the memory of . . .

Linda Rommel

In November of 1983 Linda Rommel enrolled in the Ipswich High School as a senior. Her year here as a student will not count academically in Germany but undoubtedly her experiences in America will be an education in itself. Linda takes two art classes and is active in the art club. She enjoys creating much of her own clothing, and some of her creative talents include knitting and needlepoint.

Linda comes from Nieste, a small town in West Germany with a population of about 1,200. When asked what she enjoys most about Ipswich, she replied, "It's so much like where I come from in Germany." Linda likes taking long walks and is looking forward to the warm weather so she can start exploring the beach.

One of the things Linda hopes to gain from this program is a greater sense of understanding of American culture. This exchange has also been enriching for all of us. By sharing ideas and experiences with Linda, we all have a better understanding of another culture and a greater desire for world peace.

Mie Sato

Mie arrived in Ipswich in August 1983 from Gobo Japan. Through the American Institute for Foreign Students, Mie was able to join the Senoir Class at Ipswich High. She hopes one day to speak English well enough to find a job as a foreign diplomat or interpreter, which will incorporate the two languages. During her stay in Ipswich Mie resided with Barbara King, the art teacher at Ipswich High School. Throughout the school year, Mie observed many differences between her school in Japan and Ipswich High. Mie attends a public school in Japan where the administration is very strict. The students must wear uniforms, and pierced ears and permed hair are not allowed. Mie found the casual atmosphere here at Ipswich High a nice change of pace.

At first Mie had a tough time adjusting to the language and cultural differences between Japan and the U.S; but her warm personality made it easy for her to make new friends and soon she was able to feel right at home. When she returns to Japan in June, her friends and experiences in the U.S. will surely be long-remembered. S.L.

Dear Teachers,

College bound seniors are usually required to include teacher recommendations with their applications. Unfortunately this is one of the few times that students really hear the many praises of their high school experience. It is enjoyable to hear what you trully think of us personally, as well as academically. These recommendations are the inspiration for this letter.

If students could write letters of recommendation for you, you would receive many praises also. Since Ipswich High is a small school, you as teachers are able to work on a more personal level with us, your students, and many good friendships have been formed between us. Besides valuing these friendships, we also respect what you have accomplished academically in your lifetime, and what you will accomplish in the future. We feel lucky to be a part of a school where such student-teacher relationships are caring and friendly, as well as conventional.

Many of us feel privilaged to have become good friends with some of you. Your lessons as well as your companionship have been invaluable to us. You have been some of the most important people in our lives. Not only have we learned from you, but we have sometimes relied on you to get us through difficult times. We hope that we have been able to make some contribution to your career as a teacher as well as your experience as a human being. Thank you for what you have given us; we appreciate your guidance.

Since the beginning, our social fabric inhibits good interpersonal relationships, and forces us into many types of competition. Competition is within everything we do. It has been taught to us ever since our own beginning, and we are brought up with the idea that competition is ideal, not just in sports, but even the simplist conversation. Without even giving it a second thought it permeates our entire lives, and it seems that almost everything we do becomes some type of race, or contest to beat our opponents.

It is said that competition brings out the best in man; this is only half true. For although our good qualities can emerge from competition, other qualities come out in the form of cheating, or even taking over our opponent when we are losing. However, when these qualities come to the forefront, society teaches us to ignore them. Our human nature does not always allow us to respond to others, but to outdo them, vie with them, beat them.

What about the good in competition? Does it not cause us to better ourselves through a constant attempt to BE better? Does it not allow good sportsmanship to shine within some of us? What would the world be without competition? A shapeless mass of robots that never strive for anything, or everyone being the same, with equal qualities and abilities. Without a degree of competition the world would be dull, that is why we constantly engage in varities of contests.

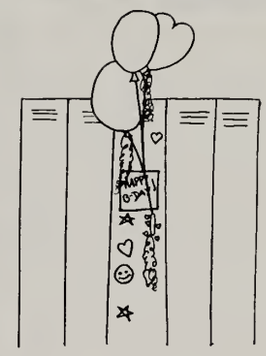
SOPHOMORES



Being a sophomore is really ruff. You're not an upperclassman, but you're not a freshman either. This tends to make sophomores just a little bit dingy.

JUNIORS

There once existed in a small New England town a community of rabbits. These rabbits lived with their families in underground homes that were grouped quite closely together, and all that were neither too young nor too old worked together on a common farm, to grow food for their whole community. Although the group of rabbits was not very large (as compared to other nearby rabbit-communities), there was an amazing diversity among the personalities of the individuals.

The diversity is best exemplified by three of the younger rabbits, good friends who were all about the same age. They spent their days together on the farm, though each had quite different work habits. Because they were still young, the elders of the community did not make them work as hard as the adults, who were through with their schooling. Instead, they were allowed to follow their own inclinations, as long as they made some positive contribution to the community.

The first rabbit was named Fawn. Now, Fawn was a nice enough rabbit, but he was very lazy and preferred laying in the sun by himself to helping his friends on the farm. Although he led a very relaxed life, he was not all that happy because he was very unproductive and wasn't around the other rabbits very much, so he missed out on most of the fun and good times as well as most of the work.

The second rabbit's name was Jade. Jade was very active, and always kept busy about the farm. But like Fawn, she did not enjoy work very much. She preferred to think of herself as "in management". She spent most of her work days hopping quickly around the farm, surveying all the operatons, and telling all the other rabbits exactly how they should be doing their jobs, while accomplishing next to nothing on her own.

The last member of the three was named Starr. She was neither stupid nor brilliant, strong nor weak, and neither quick nor slow. However she was extremely good natured, and she was a dedicated and steady worker. Unlike Fawn, she didn't mind pulling her share of the load, and she greatly enjoyed being around the other rabbits. Unlike Jade, she did not stick her nose into everything, but instead performed just a few operations, and her dedication caused her to become very skilled. All of her co-workers admired her because she was so friendly and cheerful, and she was one of the model workers of the community.

Each of these three rabbits were like so many people that we all know, and we can certainly learn from them. It may be easier or more convenient to be like Fawn or Jade, but those people who try to emulate Starr will profit the most in the end. Not only will they better themselves, but also many of the people whose lives they touch.

. . . games always cover something deep and intense, else there would be no excitement in them, no pleasure, no power to stir us.

Antoine De Saint Erupery

Sports provide us with an excitment which is, despite the length of that excitment, good. Games are significant in people's lives, for in a match everything is clearly defined. We are told how to play, and even how long to play; there is a definate begining, as well as a definate end. We are drawn to sports in an effort to better ourselves through intense competition. We strive for the best possible 'me'. When we win, or even if we don't, knowing that we have played well, is a great personal satisfaction. The achievement of this satisfaction lingers in us until we get that second urge for another game.

There is another reason that we participate in sports, group or individual; this is for the physical factor. No matter what sports we play our joints and muscles are constantly working. It feels great to get out and exercise those tired bones. Our hearts may be beating rapidly, our muscles might not be able to move, we may not even be able to breathe, but for some reason we still feel great.

To some, sports may be silly or even ridiculous, but for those of us who know how rewarding sports can be, an exhilerating feeling prevails.

William Siegel

The Police continue to be a popular group as they relay their messages of the dilemmas of the eighties ie. suicide, starvation and nuclear war.

A prime example of the new music sweeping the nation is Adam Ant who has a small but dedicated following of I.H.S. seniors.

Tom Cruise was chosen as the best looking celebrity by the class of 1984 after the success of his two movies, Risky Business and All the Right Moves.

Jessica Lange was nominated as best actress for her roles in Tootsie and Frances.

Michael Jackson's new fourteen minute video, Thriller, enhanced his already popular image and his album has brought back motown into popular music.*

Risky Business was voted as the best film of the year for Tom Cruise's portrayal of a "typical" senior in some very interesting situations(!). The movie Hair making a comeback from the sixties was a close second.*

Boy George of Culture Club is one of the most controversal pop singers of 1983. However, He has found tremendous success in the macho world of pop music amid his makeup and flowing robes.*

Popular- music videos, Bloom County, the TV show Cheers, decorating your locker, looking Good Posters, Cranes Beach, DQ runs, Meal Prep I, BCN, mopeds, transportation by way of crutches, GH (Laura is back!), trying to figure out who sits at your desk during the day, partying, gossip, wool and cotton, money, "Glamour" magazine, Chinese food, mint oreo icecream, the question: is Boy George a fag?, and graduation!

Unpopular- cafeteria food, in-school suspension, Cabbage Patch Kids, writing essays for college applications, Freshmen, twenty minute lunch periods, polyester and flares (how tacky), the rule of silence in study hall, school on Monday, Chem II, designer jeans, students who think they own the halls, tests, and graduation (for those students who actually liked their high school years, whether they admit it or not).

The Beatles' music has made a comeback after being America's hottest group of the sixties.

Christie Brinkely has become the newest model to adorn as many male lockers as Farrah Fawcett had.

Richard Gere's convincing portrayal of his characters in Breathless, American Gigolo and An Officer and a Gentleman made him the foremost choice as best actor by the class of 84.*

PROB LEMS

Ah yes, problems. They come in all sorts of guises, sneaking up on you when you least expect them. All students are plagued by these nasty little varmints as they struggle through their high school career. We know their numerous aliases: complications, midterms, yearbook deadlines, oral reports, and various other closet anxieties. (Needless to say, we could go on forever but there's only so much space in a yearbook.)

In order to help the student combat these . . . "ah yes, problems", we have had them broken down and analyzed. They fall into three basic catagories: catastrophic, horrific, and totally wicked bad.

Catastrophic problems unfortunately occur quite frequently. Those famous acts of procrastination appear whenever there is a long term assignment in conflict with your favorite TV show. After Magnum P.I. is over, you find yourself facing at least ten pieces of blank paper and some obscure subject to write about. It is impossible to say how many books are written that pertain to the topic of the earth without kiwi fruit. Finally at 3:30 A.M., you realize that you have to begin. So you copy it straight out of the only book on the subject (You couldn't have said it any better yourself.). You realize the next day as you're being dragged out of the classroom by two plainclothesmen that your teacher has checked up on your source. Plagerism - a student's downfall.

There comes a time in every student's life when the spectre of unemployment rears its ugly head. In other words you have to get a job. This is definitely classed as "horrific", and might be a traumatic experience for those of us who have never had authority exercised upon us. The ideal job for a student is one that doesn't involve work but incorporates plenty of sun with a minimum of labor. Need we say more?

College applications are totally wicked bad; there's no other way to describe them. The torturous process begins when unheard of colleges start sending you pamphlets and brochures claiming that you are just what there're looking for. However, you must now start looking for the "perfect" college. Social life is of course, the first aspect that you should look at. Heck, what is a college without socializing; it would just be another four years of hard work! In other words, what is a college without its Greeks-FRATERNITIES! College food is also of major importance, because you will have to suffer cafeteria food seven days a week. It is important to remember that it is only so often that mummy can send C.A.R.E. packages. The last and most important factor to consider is the dreaded college application. It goes without saying that applications without essays are most favorably looked upon. For those of us who are not English scholars the essay is the most difficult part. Your future depends upon this one piece of writing, and in consequence, applications are put off to the last possible moment. Eventually you have to sit down and write them. After sending them off, comes the worst part, waiting! Rejection falls into all three of the categories: CATASTROPHIC, HORRIFIC, and TOTALLY WICKED BAD.

1984
SUCCESS, HEALTH
AND
HAPPINESS FOR THE FUTURE

For having the most work, you guys sure slacked off a lot this year!/?# Advisors B. King and R. Merullo

Did you ever think that THESE two would get into the same picture together? Co-editors Ken Jewell and William Siegel

Even though you're the editor of the most minor section of the yearbook, you did an ok job. Business editor Lisa Huntley

YEARBOOK STAFF

A SPECIAL THANKS TO ALL THOSE WHO DID EXTRA WORK TO MAKE THIS YEARBOOK SPECIAL . . .

So many questions, but a superior job . . . thanks.
B. Hultgren
C. Knowlton
J. Whooley
N. Dooley

For the first time in yearbook history, there weren't enough pictures to fill the underclassmen section.
J. Varrell
P. Burke
S. Jewell

Due to the new ideas brought about in this year's faculty section, future teacher sections will be cancelled.
L. Morrison

Thanks to the true dedication of you two, we have a terriffic looking ads-design section. L. McLaughlin, L. McCarty, J. Leamy

For a section that began with many, but ended with so few. D. Siegel, B. Winter, A. Mulholland

Thanks for all the great pictures we got after the deadlines! Seriously, you did fantastic work J. Soucy, S. Lynn and W. Pierce

THE COMPLETION OF THIS SPECIAL YEARBOOK WAS NOT LIMITED TO JUST A FEW, BUT TO MANY WHO WILLINGLY SHARED THEIR TIME TO MAKE THIS THE BEST POSSIBLE YEARBOOK. WITHOUT A GROUP EFFORT THIS BOOK COULD NEVER HAVE BEEN COMPLETED. THOSE OF US WHO REALLY WORKED KNOW WHAT A TOUGH JOB IT IS. THE RECOGNITION MAY BE LIMITED, BUT THE PERSONAL SATISFACTION, AS WELL AS THE GOOD FEELING WHEN LOOKING AT THE COMPLETED WORK, TAKES PRIORITY OVER ANYTHING ELSE. GOOD LUCK TO ALL OF YOU IN THE FUTURE.

William Siegel and Ken Jewell

The dedication you guys showed proves that even the impossible can be accomplished. M. Kleiner, L. Huntley, C. Parady, K. Wilson, J. Strok, J. Ericson, L. McLaughlin

Ladies, ladies, ladies . . . think ladies! K. Hultgren, S. Fisher, P. Tremblay, J. Hopkins

The editors know every thing . . .
K. Abbott
S. Barnhart
L. Andrews
E. Whooley
G. Middlebrooks

IF THERE IS ONE THING BETTER THAN THE THRILL OF LOOKING FORWARD, IT IS THE EXHILERATION THAT FOLLOWS THE FINISHING OF A LONG AND EXACTING PIECE OF WORK.

ALEC WAUGH

Murphy's Law. (and it did) S. Noe

For the least amount of work, you guys sure did get your stuff in late! MJ Paulitz, A. Richards, E. Whooley, K. Shannon

We, the co-editors, representing the yearbook staff and the class of 1984, would like to add our special thanks to . . .

Mr. Qualters, Mrs. Faust & Mr. Winters for reviewing our writing
Sharyl Lynn, Wendy Pierce & Jessica Soucy for being our student photographers
Mr. Thoen for flying the plane and giving us a "different view" of education
Everyone who helped raise the money to pay for this production
Our families & friends who became our patrons
The community for all the support it has shown through advertisements
Leslie McLaughlin for all the ads she managed to sell
All our teachers for their "patience"
Everyone in guidance for helping us to "make it"
Mr. McKenzie for being there when we needed him most
Heather Kauffman, Sharyl Lynn & Monique Valcour for sharing their literary talents with us
Pam Burke, Jessica Hopkins & Jennifer Leamy for sharing their artistic talents with us
Mark Lawrence Studios for being super school photographers . . . especially, Jack
Tom Keeley, our yearbook publishing representative
The victims of the yearbook 3-ring notebook: The Jaws of Death
Bartlett's Book of Familiar Quotations
